CLAUDIA BERKEFELD

DIRECTOR LONDON OFFICE

Claudia Berkefeld is an experienced creative lead and project director with a passion for holistic spatial design. Since 2015, she is also director of our London office.

With her flair for creating unique spatial atmospheres that reflect our client's culture and people, Claudia sits at the forefront of corporate workplace design. Since joining Evolution Design in 2008, she has been responsible for a number of the practice's most notable projects, including the award-winning headquarters of chocolate manufacturer Barry Callebaut, TeamBank's headquarters in Nuremberg, Unilever's Global Supply Chain Hub and Google's EMEA Engineering Hub in Zurich. Claudia was also in charge of developing Freudenberg Group's corporate architecture guidelines.

Claudia's core strength is developing symbiotic relationships with clients and managing complex projects, often with multiple stakeholders. She embraces the opportunity to actively engage clients in the design and planning process, resulting in a creative collaborative process that achieves innovative solutions, unique to every project.

From concept to completion, Claudia ensures that the project's outcome is authentic, aesthetically harmonious and satisfies the requirements of the users.

» It's the collaboration with our client team that makes the project unique, sustainable long term and successful. It's only through everyone aiming at the same vision that we can add even greater value to the investment made by our clients.
